Obama's 'legacy' watch: The next 4 years Former President Bill Clinton and former First Lady Hillary Clinton, now running to become America's first female president, react to the results of the Super Tuesday primaries at Southern Co in Lakeland, Florida, U.S., March 14, 2008. REUTERS/Gretchen Ertl/File Photo BALTIMORE (Reuters) - The next four years are all about Barack Obama, after all. The 44-year-old U.S. senator from Illinois, on a triumphal march through New York state in the early hours of Wednesday, is running his campaign to win the presidency in the shadow of his predecessor Bill Clinton and a glamorous second wife Hillary Clinton. It remains to be seen how much of the lesson of the Clinton years is passing from father to son, but for Obama, the first major test of 2d92ce491b
